

just like to give the people a little indication of what the next couple of legislative days will be looking like so people will get a sense of where we'll be going. First of all I think this motion to adjourn is in order. We could probably have gone all day today but people didn't have their calendars arranged in such a manner so I think it is appropriate to adjourn now. Tomorrow will be the Governor's State of the State speech plus the beginning of a four-day weekend so my recommendation for tomorrow would be that we come to session at 9:00 a.m., introduce bills, get some things into the record like I know there is a reference report that will need to go into the record and then the Governor will be speaking at ten. Following that I would anticipate an adjournment. We'll then come back into session Tuesday morning at 9:00 a.m. Be prepared on Tuesday to do a full day session, a recess and then a reconvening for purposes of adopting the permanent rules. I think we ought to try to get that wrapped up one way or the other on Tuesday and beginning on Wednesday I believe there will be some committees that will be beginning the public hearing process so beginning on Wednesday we will start our process of 9:00 a.m. convening and moving on, adjourning at noon. With that, would relinquish the Chair back to...the speaking responsibilities back to our presiding officer.
